LEMON GROVE CALIFORNIA'S HEALTHIEST COMMUNITY

VOL. 4, NO. 31 — LEMON GROVE, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1952 — 5c PER COPY

Local Committee To Be Named For $2 Million Hospital Project

100 BED STRUCTURE ENVISIONED

What voice will Lemon Grove have in the proposed $2 million Grossmont hospital project for which local property owners may be taxed up to 2 mills?

That is the question Grossmont Hospital Districts' directors are attempting to get a suitable answer to as plans progress toward getting the new hospital into blue-print stage.

Homer J. Streich, retired business man of Grossmont and one of the five District directors is attempting to line up a committee of representative Lemon Grovans to act in an advisory capacity for the board of directors.

Up to today, only one member had been definitely named. That is Mrs. Paul Fellows, former secretary of the Grossmont Hospital Association.

"This is one of the most vital issues to come before the community in recent years," Mrs. Fellows said. La Mesa hospitals are running 85 to 105% of capacity which means the need for the hospital is real."

Streich said that his Board was named by the County Supervisors in January 1952 to supervise the Grossmont Hospital District under a California State Safety and Health Commission 1947 law for building hospitals where needed. The Board has the power to assess and levy up to 2 mills for hospital purposes, he said.

On the Board with Streich are Burton I. Jones, La Mesa; Stanley P. Andrews, El Cajon; F. L. Boyd, Lakeside and R. Marvin Jackson, Calavo Gardens who is president.

According to Streich the structure will probably be built west of Grossmont High School on Highway 80 near as possible to the center of population.

County Health Department and the State Department of Hospitals, because of the heavy population growth, the large number of practicing physicians available in the area, and the proximity to national and state highways, are already recommending the hospital capacity be upped from 60 to 100 beds, Streich said. There are 52 doctors in the Ditrict he said. There are 75 thousand persons with about $60 million assessed property valuation.

Streich pointed out that Bolando will not be included because that community voted themselves out of the District during it's formation. Under District Law an automatic 2 mill levy is authorized. One third of the money will come from a bond issue which must be decided by a two-thirds vote.

The Board anticipates getting another third from the federal government through the Hill-Burton Act. The remaining third will be obtained from the State.

Property is being considered and discussions are being carried on with suitable architects as the project begins to take shape. Meanwhile three other responsible townspeople are being considered to make up the four person advisory committee which will be responsible for dissemination of information to Lemon Grove.

Orchid Show This Weekend

Lemon Grove orchid enthusiasts will have an opportunity to view hundreds of the exotic plants bearing rare and colorful blooms at the sixth annual San Diego County Orchid Show Saturday and Sunday at La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club.

Nearly 500 entries in this county will compete for cash and trophies exceeding $2,000.

The show will be open to the public Saturday from 11:30 a. m. until 9 p. m. and Sunday from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. An orchid corsage will be given to every 50th person Saturday.

Review to Make Changes

Beginning with the next issue of the Review all eight pages of each issue will carry local news.

Here-afore, four pages were made up of "ready-print", or of a "general" nature. The change will permit the Review to widen its coverage of local events and to aim at its objective of making it the most interesting newspaper in the county. Some of the more popular features now running will be carried as long as their need is indicated.

Among the new features already past the blueprint stage are weekend television programs with a local television star doing a guest column; a weekly vignette (including pictures) of outstanding business, civic, social and spiritual leaders on the many advantages of living in this community. The Review will make you want to send copies back home with a note saying: "I'm glad I live in Lemon Grove."

Naturally, some of these changes will take time but changes will be discernable with the next issue.

. . . and what publisher would pass up such an opportunity to remind his delinquent subscribers to pony up to avoid missing the new, livelier Lemon Grove Review.

La Mesa Church to Host Presbytery

The Presbytery of Los Angeles of the United Presbyterian Church of North America will hold its regular Spring meeting at the La Mesa United Presbyterian Church, 4426 Harbinson Avenue, on Thursday, April 3, beginning at 10 A. M.

This will be the first time the comparatively new La Mesa Church has been host to a regular Presbytery meeting. This official body, made up of Ministers and Elders from all the denomination's Churches in the southern half of the state, has oversite of the work in this area. It was primarily responsible for the establishment of the La Mesa Church some 2½ years ago and has continued its aid through these early years of development and growth.

Luncheon will be served to the delegates at 12 noon by a committee from the Women's Service Organization headed by Mrs. Burl Odem. The Presbytery will re-convene at 1 p. m. for the afternoon business session.

Anyone interested in the operations of the Presbyterian form of Church government (elective representative) is invited to atten all or any part of the meeting.

Present Moderator of the Presbytery is the Rev. Robert L. Caldwell of Whittier, and the Clerk is the Rev. William T. Strong, D. D. of the Florence Avenue Church, Los Angeles.

Registration Deadline

April 10 is the last day for registration of persons planning to vote in the June 3 primary election, Lemon Grove residents may register at the Casteel Real Estate office, corner of Broadway and Imperial.

Under California's permanent registration law, there is no need to re-register unless a person has failed to vote at both preceding direct primary and preceding general elections; or has moved out of a precinct; or by cancellation of registration by the Registrar of Voters for several specified reasons.

Voters may check their registration status by calling Woodcrest 6321 and asking for the Registrar of Voters.

Fire District Election Hours Set

The Fire Commissioners invite the voting public to inspect the facilities and equipment of the District when they cast their vote in the election on Monday, April 7, between the hours of 1 and 6 p.m.

Chan Mason, chairman of the Commissioners, announces that residents who are in doubt as to the boundaries of the Fire District may check the location of their property on the large map at the Fire Station Central Ave. at School Lane. Sample ballots will not be mailed for this election.

Tom Parsons and Kenneth Hall are candidates for a 3 year term.

Dr. Gerard H. Jackson, who is opposing Paul H. Tilton, incumbent for the 1-year term, resides at 1918 Fairhaven, Monterey Heights, with his wife and two daughters. He is a native of France, has resided in California for nearly 31 years and is a graduate of Ratladge College and L.A.C.C. at Los Angeles.

At Hilltop Chateau

Luncheon and bridge guests of Mrs. Lucy Strange on Wednesday were Mmes. J. L. Carroll and H. E. Johnston of San Diego, and Mrs. J. R. Benedict of Ocean Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Breithut enjoyed spending several balmy spring days in Lemon Grove this week as a contrast to the snow-cooled climate of their home at Alpine.

"UNREALITY" TO BE TOPIC

The spiritually scientific method of overcoming the spurious and baseless claims of bondage and discord will be considered in the Sunday Bible Lesson on, "Unreality" in all Christian Science churches. This verse from Ecclesiastes (5.7) constitutes the Golden Text: 'In the multitude of dreams and many words there are also divers vanities: but fear thous God."

Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds Plan Project

Camp Fire and Blue Birds will learn salesmanship and business training while helping their organization to earn funds vital for the high level program planned for the girls according to Mrs. Agnes Barton, chairman of the Lemon Grove District. They will participate with girls all over the United States in the sale of a new product, 'Camp Fire Candies."

Blue Birds and Camp Fire girls will be in Lemon Grove March 31 through April 30th, just in time to help fill Easter baskets. Cartons will be decorated with the Camp Fire emblem of crossed logs and flame which symbolizes the home and the lampfire of the outdoors.

Candies will be in two delicious flavors, Golden molasses peanut puffs and cream filled mint straws. Samples were passed at a recent Leaders Meeting and were pronounced very tasty.

Camp Fire Leaders Association meeting will be held Wednesday, April 9 at 9:30 a. m. at La Mesa Youth Center.

STUDENTS HEAR BILL OF RIGHTS

At the recent nominating convention of the student body of Helix High, Luther Hussey, local attorney, spoke briefly about the first Ten Amendments to the Federal Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and distributed among the students, printed copies of what he termed "A Bill of Duties."

Shop in Lemon Grove Friday nights.

Students to Wear Arm Bands for Off Grounds Pass

Until a few weeks ago, with many of the classes on double session in the school district in Lemon Grove, many students had free time, either in the morning or afternoon, to visit the business section of town. However, with the exception of a few primary grades, all classes now are enjoying a full day of school.

This means that boys and girls no longer have the opportunity to spend time in or around business establishments during regular school hours. Only a few students have lunch passes permitting them to go home at noon. It is sometimes necessary that students be excused from classes for short periods of time to keep medical or dental appointments, to arrange for class purchases, or to bring school news to this paper.

Within the next month all pupils excused from classes for legitimate errands or appointments will wear large green and gold armbands bearing the letters "Pass." In this way the public will be able to identify those pupils who have received permission from the principal's office to leave the school grounds.

Because the Golden Avenue and Lemon Grove Intermediate Schools are located so near the business section of the community, the problem of students spending lunch money, prior to their arrival at school in the morning arises. Both local merchants and parents are urged to discourage this practice among the student body because children not only use their lunch money hours before noon but also purchase soft drinks and sweets in excessive amounts that are detrimental to health. A hot, well-balanced lunch is served in the school cafeteria for a nominal fee, 25c.

Adults in Lemon Grove are also urged to check carefully on the sale of cigarettes to minors. The vending machines in many establishments make this vigilance difficult, but it is the duty of the entire community to protect youth from those things which may endanger their health and well-being.

Lemon Grove Stores open Friday evenings till 9.

A MAN IS AS OLD AS HIS MIND

Ray Graham, editor emeritus of the Review, wrote a column last week titled "End of a Career." One of the things he said was that he felt there were three sides to every question. "My side, the other fellow's side and the right side."

A guy with that kind of thinking will live to eat the title of he piece with crow. He'll be serving some community, somewhere, as well as he served Lemon Grove. Admitting there are many sides to anything indicates a supple mind. In a community growing as fast as Lemon Grove it is necessary to adjust thinking and raise sights many times a year. An inflexible mind is hopelessly lost. I remember sitting at a dinner not so long ago at which some of San Diego's "old guard" were present. They, for a greater part, were bemoaning the fact that San Diego "isn't what it used to be."

It certainly isn't, and all the resistance they could muster wont change the picture. How much better they would be to accept San Diego as a new small metropolis and lend their experience to helping the adjacent communities expand properly. The entire corner of Southern California is moving ahead so fast that a slight hesitation might get the stumbler out of rhythm with progress. To give a better picture of what I mean let me list a few developments which were either realized or related during the past hundred years, developments that have astonishingly changed the way of life of everyone on the face of the earth.

In 1900 an American scientist said "there is no known combination of substances . . . of machinery . . . and forms of force that will permit a machine to fly long distances through the air." Americn Airlines doesn't believe it."

In 1865 a newspaper reported the arrest of a man in New York for attempting to accot funds from ignorant and suspicious people by exhibiting a device which he said would convey the human voice over metallic wires. "Well informed people know that it is impossible, but even if it were possible it would be of no practical value," the paper commented.

It has only been a generation ago that roads were being engineered for horse and buggy travel. And already some of our superhighw ys are antiquated. The list could go on and on. A hundred items would hardly start a complete list of remarkable developments made available to us since the start of the last war.

It is not only accept progress, but to cope with it

Gen. Eisenhower, Sen. Kefauver Win in New Hampshire Election

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Political dopesters, both Republican and Democrat, have spent days trying to read a national trend into the results of the New Hampshire preferential primary. No one can be sure how the results can be applied to the nation as a whole, but there are several noteworthy facts as a result of the election which the average home town voter can apply to his own area.

EISENHOWER

TAFT

General Eisenhower's victory is an indication of the respect and popularity he commands from the average voter. This is important when it is remembered that Eisenhower backers made no all-out effort in the contest. On the other hand, Senator Taft stumped the state as if campaigning in the presidential race itself.

There is one obvious conclusion. Except for Ohio, and perhaps, a few other strongholds, Eisenhower appears to be the GOP's best vote getter. Whether or not he can get the nomination, of course, still remains in serious doubt.

On the Democratic side of the picture, Senator Kefauver pulled something of an upset by defeating President Truman, who had the state's Democratic machine behind him. As a result, it is reasonable to assume that the Tennessee senator has a far greater vote getting potential than political forecasters realized, or President Truman is so unpopular the votes went to Kefauver as a protest of the Truman administration and policies.

It should be remembered, however, that results of the preferential contest are not binding on the state's convention delegates, either Republican or Democrat. Taft still retains a majority of the Republican convention delegates. Encouraged by the New Hampshire result, Eisenhower backers may now begin their all-out drive to corral delegates and thus the nomination.

Kefauver's victory in New Hampshire does not mean he is as popular in other sections of the country. Truman still has the nomination tied up if he wants it. Some observers believe, however, Truman will now hasten his decision about running, if he has not already made up his mind. By a quick announcement he might check growing Kefauver popularity.

DEADLOCK—With peace talks deadlocked over prisoner exchange and what nations will supervise the armistice, if one is ever negotiated, the big question on the battlefront is what effect spring will have on the two armies which have faced each other for nearly two years.

In this connection, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander, indulged in a little speculation. The commander reported the Chinese and Korean Reds have built up a force of 900,000 men in Korea. He added that the Reds have more men, weapons, and planes than the Allies.

But he does not believe the Reds will launch a spring offensive, but if they did he would welcome it and stop it cold.

"I am confident we could stop any attack the Communists might throw at us", he said. "It would be a good thing if we could get those people out of their foxholes and dugouts to mow them down the way we did last April and May."

As for possible Allied plans, the general said: "The future operations of the Eighth Army are still on the conference table at Panmunjom."

That was not saying very much, but it is generally believed there will be no all-out Allied offensive unless the truce talks collapse completely. If they should, then the people of the home towns of America must steel themselves for the explosion that of necessity must follow. It could mean an all-out war in Asia.

Meanwhile, the Department of Defense reported the latest American casualty total in Korea at 106,458. Of the total, 18,505 are known to have been killed.

TAXES—The all-powerful house-senate economic committee reportedly has agreed that there should be no general increase in tax rates this year. It was not exactly surprising news to the nation's taxpayers, since congressional opposition has been expressed from the moment President Truman announced his record $85,000,000,000 spending budget.

The committee went on record as favoring a $10,000,000,000 cut in the budget. By closing existing tax loopholes, the $10 billion budget cut, and with surpluses which go into government trust funds, the committee said it believed the budget could be balanced.

The President had asked congress to close the tax loopholes in his annual economic report, but had also asked an increase in taxation by whatever additional was necessary to boost government income by $5,000,000,000 a year.

AVERAGE FAMILY—A recent economic survey reveals there has been such a vast shift in income distribution in the United States in the past 20 years it can be classed as a social revolution.

The survey reveals the very poor have become fewer by two-thirds of their 1939 number. And the poor have become better off. Where three out of four families had incomes of less than $2,000 a year in 1939, only one out of three fell into that class ten years later.

The well-to-do and the rich have become more numerous. In the late thirties, one family in about 50 was in the $5,000 and over income class, and one out of 100 was in the $10,000 and over class. Ten years later, one family out of six was in the $5,000 and over class, and one out of twenty in the $10,000 and over class.

Over the years the very rich have become poorer because the rise in labor incomes has been accompanied by a decline in property incomes. The share of the upper 1 per cent of income receivers in total incomes has declined in 35 years from 16 per cent to 9 per cent.

NEW WATCH—A fantastic achievement in the science of timekeeping was revealed when Elgin researchers took the wraps off their latest development—a conventional sized wrist watch that stores its own source of electrical power and will operate more than a year before its tiny "energy capsule" expires.

World's tiniest cell, a powerful energy capsule smaller than a penny in volume, provides power for new electronic watch.

The electronic watch of tomorrow is still in the laboratory but its sponsors claim it will eventually revolutionize personal timekeeping. Its motor, the smallest practical unit ever built, replaces the mainspring which has been used in all watches made the past 450 years. Also eliminated is the winding mechanism, since the energy capsule does that job.

The capsule itself, smaller in volume than a penny, discharges power at such a constant rate that the new watch will keep perfect time. And when it expires, a watchmaker will be able to insert a new one in a few minutes at nominal cost.

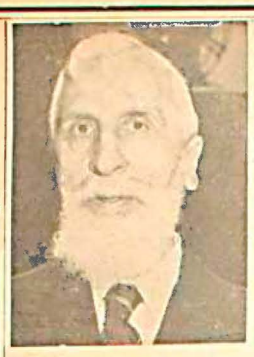
Some estimate of the infinitesimal size of Elgin's "power plant" was given in the description that 10,000,000 electronic watches could be operated from the power consumed by a single 100-watt light bulb. And eventually they hope to make it smaller still, applying the same principle to a woman's watch.

GAMBLING TAX

Yield Far Less Than Congress Expected

The internal revenue bureau reports the government's new gambling license and tax has yielded far less than expected when it was enacted. The total yield from November through January was a mere $1,455,393. When congress passed the license law, it was estimated that the annual yield would be 400 million dollars.

Sales of the $50 a year occupation stamp in November, December, and January netted $484,429 from 16,029 professional gamblers. The 10 per cent tax on gross receipts amounted to $970,964. For December, the first full month to which the tax was applied, the return was $759,182. The 10 per cent tax on gross business for January has not been tabulated and is not included in the total gross receipts.



SEEKS CITIZENSHIP . . . Dr. Izaak Alkalay, Brooklyn, former chief rabbi of Yugoslavia and senator there, has signed a petition for final U.S. naturalization after 10 years here. He is now chief rabbi of the sephardic Jews in America.

ACCUSED AS SMUGGLER . . . A Cairo newspaper says the government of Yemen has accused Wendell Phillips, California archeologist, of smuggling a statue of the Queen of Sheba from Yemen. Wendell's party fled from Yemen under gunfire by tribesmen.

POLITICAL PRISONER . . . Secretary of State Acheson and Senator Moody of Michigan have been asked to intercede for Saul Saulson, 23, Detroit, held in Argentina as a political prisoner. He was arrested on suspicion of mixing in local politics.

DI MAGGIO TO STAR . . . Joe DiMaggio smiles as he holds up a contract he signed in New York to star on a television program to be called "Joe DiMaggio's Dugout." His program, aimed at the youth of America, will be seen and heard Sundays, a.m.

MARITAL DUET . . . Robert Merrill and Roberta Peters, both of the Metropolitan opera, announce at the New York home of Miss Peters' parents that they will be married. She sang with Merrill in the "Barber of Seville" in February, 1951.

ISRAEL MAKES PAYMENT . . . The government of Israel has made the first payment on principal on loans totaling $135,000,000 which it received from the export-import bank of Washington. Here, Israel Ambassador Abba Eban (right) presents a check for $2,953,063.47 to Mr. Herbert E. Gaston, chairman of the import-export bank. The part-payment on Israel's loan was made at the bank's offices in Washington, D.C. Other payments will be made regularly, spokesmen for Israel say.

MARINES REPLACED BY DRAFTEES . . . At an east coast port in North Korea, the first corps of marine draftees to enter a combat zone since World War II are pictured debarking from an LST to enter the fighting in the present "police action." These men will serve as replacements with marine corps regulars. Officers of the fighting marines let it be known quickly that the marines would make no distinctions between the men who had been drafted and those who had volunteered to fight with the marine corps.

AERIAL STOWAWAY . . . Standing at the corner of 46th street, New York City, Paula Theedon, London secretary who came to America the hard way, looks over Broadway in the rain. She stowed away aboard a private plane. When she was discovered aboard the plane in Iceland, it was proved that her papers were in order and she was permitted to finish the flight as a stewardess. She plans to stay in New York sightseeing for about 10 days. Then she will return to London and her job.

TAFT, TRUMAN EQUALLY BAD . . . Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota and now president of the University of Pennsylvania as well as a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, addresses the Washington, D.C., Republican club. He is calling for a new United States foreign policy that would thwart the Russian Communist bear without resorting to war. He denounced the programs of President Truman and Senator Taft as being "equally bad for America."

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY...DREW PEARSON

Morris Nearly Quits

THE WHITE HOUSE has hushed it up, but clean-up man Newbold Morris came within a whisker the other day of packing his bags and going home. He was stopped at the last minute by a personal appeal from President Truman, himself.

The inside story is that Morris, depressed over the runaround he was getting, decided that his assignment was "impossible." He announced his decision to quit at a routine conference with Justice department officials.

"I'm going home," he declared simply. "This thing hasn't been thought through. For example, I'm supposed to report my investigations to the very man I'm supposed to be investigating."

Morris was referring, of course, to his boss—Attorney General McGrath.

Within a few minutes, however, word of Morris's surprise decision was flashed to the White House, and presidential aide Charlie Murphy was rushed to Morris's office.

Talking fast, Murphy urged the new trouble-shooter to talk it over with President Truman, and promptly hustled him to the White House. Within half an hour, Morris was in the oval room conferring earnestly with the President.

Truman begged Morris to stay on, promised him a free hand and guaranteed full White House support.

"You can have anything you want," the President offered.

Message to Moscow

School children across the nation are participating in the Messages-to-Moscow campaign. Many of the messages will soon be heard behind the iron curtain via the powerful radio beams of the Voice of America and will help offset Moscow's propaganda about American "warmongers."

Here, for example, is the kindly and straightforward message from a 19-year-old veteran of the Korean war—Purple Heart winner Garland Roberts, a junior at Pineville high school, West Virginia:

"My message is not a message of bitterness. Although I am only nineteen years old, I have fought in one of the most conflicting wars of the century—the Korean.

"Your nation is often accused of starting this war, yet I do not feel malice toward you. There must be many of you who have suffered more than I. Every American realizes that much is forced upon you.

"America and her people would like to see the Russian people free in a democratic nation with all the rights that we in America enjoy.

"I know that you, being my age, feel and act the same way as I; and that you would enjoy our democratic form of government.

"It is a great thing to be free and to live without knowing fear and unhappiness."

American Prisoners

While the public anxiously watches U.N. truce negotiations to free American prisoners in Korea, many Ex-G.I.s who were prisoners during the last war wonder if congress will ever get around to settling claims arising out of their imprisonment.

Though congressional hearts bleed profusely for G.I. prisoners of the Communists, some of the same congressmen are secretly trying to whittle down or completely eliminate the funds to compensate U.S. war prisoners for work they performed while prisoners of Italy, Germany or Japan. Though these payments won't cost the American taxpayers a single cent, congress is strangely reluctant to O.K. them.

The Geneva convention provided that a nation which captures enemy prisoners in wartime must pay these men for labor performed as prisoners. Accordingly, after World War II, we concluded agreements with the German, Italian and Japanese government, under which congress appropriated a total of $169,000,000 to pay enemy prisoners for work done for us.

However, believe it or not, congress is now considering turning this alien property back to German, Italian and Japanese nationals, rather than paying American P.O.W.s.

There are a total of 14 bills now before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee—several of them already passed by the senate—which would return the property to certain classes of former enemy nationals.

Worried McGrath

Old senate friends who have dropped in on Attorney General Howard McGrath recently are shocked at the change in him.

Usually genial and self-confident, McGrath now complains to visitors: "I'm being hounded. Nothing I say or do is right. Every time I make a statement, it's distorted. Even in my own state, the people don't get an accurate picture of what I'm trying to do."

New Electronic Science Born in Cottage

(This is the last of a series of three articles on the coming of a nationwide television service.)

To the people who will receive this new ultra high frequency television service, various considerations will govern their selection of home equipment.

In some areas, under the FCC plan, only UHF channel will be received. Present set owners, who have perhaps been picking up a distant VHF signal, will be able to purchase a simple and inexpensive fixed channel tuner to go with their present sets.

For residents of areas where several UHF channels can be received, full range tuners have been designed.

In many new television areas, the projected coverage will include both types of service. And combination UHF-VHF sets are likely to be the industry's answer. These sets will probably gravitate toward the major population centers since the allocation plan envisages both services in all but three of the country's 50 major market areas.

In addition to tuners and combination sets, the public will probably have an opportunity to purchase various types of antenna for UHF reception. In the course of their long experimentation, RCA engineers designed numerous effective receiving antenna of remarkable varied shape. One of the simplest is known as a "bow-tie" and looks just like an enlarged version of this male neckwear. Another is known as a "Double V", and consists of two sets of dipoles (metal rods cut to a critical length) attached to a pole in the form of two V's. There is a parabolic antenna, with metal bars attached to a curving semi-circular shaft, and there is an antenna with the colorful name of "Yagi."

These are the antenna which in a few years might dot the rooftops of farms and ranches and city residences. When new stations begin to go up, the industry will undoubtedly standardize on a few of many experimental antenna models, giving full consideration to both performance and sightliness.

The industry has already made formidable gains in overcoming the problem of designing UHF station transmitters with sufficient power to provide required area coverage. The first test models were one kilowatt, but units of from 10-12 kilowatts are now being tested.

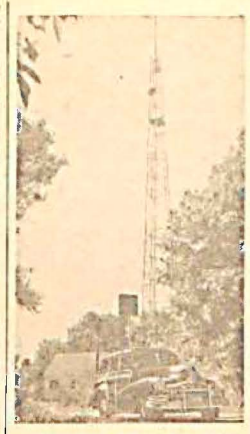
Ample Power

New gain antenna have also been developed, and the industry is looking toward UHF antenna that can radiate 200 kilowatts—more than ample power to meet nearly all conditions.

Of course, the UHF service has its limitations like every other service. UHF transmissions, like VHF, are dependent on line of sight between transmitting and receiving antennas. In addition, they are more directional and the location of transmitter sites is of prime importance. Mountains, hills and other physical impediments can block effective transmission.

In addition to promising television to presently vacant areas, UHF offers new hopes for thousands of set owners who live in "fringe" areas. These areas are on the outskirts of the effective telecast coverage from present VHF stations.

To obtain a home picture in these fringe areas, towering antennae are frequently required, and often the pictures are too faint and "noisy," and lack the contrast required for enjoyable home viewing.



SUCCESS HILL—The lofty antenna of the Bridgeport UHF station towers over the white frame station house at the left. In the foreground is a station wagon equipped with UHF receiver and portable antenna. It has been used to test signal strength throughout the Bridgeport area. Station KC2XAK is the first and only UHF station in the country to operate on a regular daily basis. It is located on the crest of Success Hill on Bridgeport's outskirts.

New stations are the obvious answer to fringe viewing, but if they are VHF stations they might conflict with the signal, however faint, from the more distant VHF transmitters.

With UHF, however, new stations with new channels can go up in the very shadow of existing transmitters and a clear, bright picture can be enjoyed by everyone.

A small Cape Cod cottage which sits atop a wooded hill on the outskirts of Bridgeport, Conn., is the cradle of a new electronic science. For two years, field tests on the transmission of television signals in the upper regions of the air waves have centered around the cottage. Out of these tests has come a new system of video transmission that will soon have a very real impact on the life of residents of Tazoo City, Miss., and Thief River Falls, Minn., and Wolf Point, Mont.

Center of Interest

Despite its lack of pretension, the cottage has been a prime attraction in recent months for government leaders, for scores of executives in the radio and television industry, for some of the nation's outstanding electronic scientists, engineers and technicians. Even the Connecticut State Police have been lured there for extra-curricular duties.

Since December 30, 1949, the little cottage on Success Hill has housed the first and only Ultra-High Frequency television station in the nation which operates on a regular daily basis. It has been the field headquarters for the television industry's march into the untapped UHF band.

The station was built by the Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Company as the culminating move in a long campaign to find sufficient space in the air waves for a national television service. A lofty 250-foot UHF transmitting tower was erected outside the cottage. The interior was stocked with television transmitting equipment. Inside, it looked much like any other station, but its special tubes and circuits were designed for UHF rather than VHF channels now standard for video transmissions.

Bridgeport was picked for the field tests because the undulations of its terrain make line-of-sight television transmission difficult. In addition, it lies in a "fringe" television area, picking up remote signals from New York and New Haven.

Under these extreme test conditions, the Bridgeport station, which was given the experimental designation of KC2XAK by the Federal Communications Commission, began picking up the video signals of Station WNBT, the National Broadcasting Company's New York outlet which beams off the Empire State antenna. These signals, in turn, were rebroadcast via UHF to Bridgeport area.

To pick up this broadcast, engineers of the RCA Victor Division designed and built 50 UHF experimental sets, and 50 tuners to permit present set owners to receive both UHF and VHF telecasts.

The test equipment, together with various experimental receiving antennas, was installed in local homes within a 25 mile radius of Success Hill. In about half the homes, there were no receivers and service men installed both UHF and VHF antennas. This permitted comparison of the pictures picked up direct from New York and New Haven with those beamed over the Bridgeport experimental unit.

There were hundreds of offers of voluntary cooperation from residents of Bridgeport and its suburbs. The homes selected for the tests were carefully spotted to obtain a full area study. Engineers made regular rounds of the test homes over a period of months to analyze the pictures and to compile reception ratings.

But even this was not enough for a full picture. A station wagon was equipped with precise measuring equipment and receivers, and a truck was fitted out with a collapsible antenna that could be quickly elevated.

Making Signal Patterns

Up and down parkways, highways, country roads and lanes, the unique electronic caravan rolled along with police cars fore and aft.

Nearly all of the television industry moved into Bridgeport on the invitation of RCA. Sixty-four manufacturers, in fact, descended on the industrial town to use the UHF signals. In hotel rooms, homes, stores and display rooms the technicians of the industry designed and set up equipment that would pick up the unwavering signal from Success Hill. They developed tuners to be attached to present sets; they perfected new antennas; they devised effective equipment for combined UHF-VHF reception.

Members of the Federal Communications Commission, headed by Wayne Coy, then chairman of the FCC, visited the workshop. RCA engineers and technicians maintained a steady flow of information into the Commission headquarters, and on the basis of this technical data the plan for a national service began to take shape. In August and September of 1951, Mr. Coy and more than a hundred engineers from TV stations throughout America attended demonstrations of the latest UHF equipment. They saw a clear, flickerless picture brought in by a variety of tuners.

At last UHF was ready. Mr. Coy spoke of 3,000 television stations in America "soon," with two-thirds to three-quarters in the UHF band.

"I am sold on UHF," the FCC chairman declared, and the industry echoed his words.

Service to Mankind

Today, there are 2,400 AM and 680 FM radio stations in America. Daily broadcasts reach 95 per cent of the country. More than 105,000,000 radio sets have been sold. There are more than 43,000,000 radio equipped homes. It can be claimed, without exaggeration, that in a quarter-century radio has become as much a household utility as the electric light or the telephone.

All signs indicate that television will acquire a comparable status in the next decade. The industry, in typical private enterprise fashion, has gambled millions on the perfection of VHF and the development of UHF. It has paved the way for small-town television, and the speed with which the small towns capitalize on this opportunity is in part a local question.

Under FCC procedure, television station license applications will be accepted for a fixed period. It is then the responsibility of local people—businessmen, educators, newspaper publishers, bankers, labor and religious leaders—to see that local license applications are filed and that the opportunity does not go by default.

The government won't build the stations. The broadcast industry operates under the old American tradition of free enterprize. Industry can provide the equipment, the government can provide the license, but the people of America—must make the final decision on whether their towns will be linked to the world via television.

SHOE STORY

With All The Fixings

By Michael Tiff

AS USUAL, stepping out of the exclusive Bankers and Manufacturers Club building, I felt that I had a lot to say to the world in general and to my favorite shoeshine boy, Mickey McKenzie, in particular. In fact, I was overjoyed to see him coming toward me through the crowded sidewalk, with his business stock and equipment housed in a crudely constructed box with a shoe rest. The feeling of satisfaction within me, born of recent pyramidic successes in the stock market, glowed with pleasant warmth; and I wanted presently to transmit that glow to Mickey himself.

3-Minute Fiction

"Hi, Mr. Crowley. Shine?"

"You bet, Mickey. How's your business?"

"Okay. Mr. Crowley. How's your business?"

"Okay, Mickey."

I watched him again with satisfaction. I approved of the way he worked, with his long sandy hair falling from one side to the other as his slight body swayed to his task.

Noticing Mickey's curious glances at the other members of the club walking into or out of the building in greater numbers than usual, I informed him, "Today is the anniversary—the hundredth—of the Bankers & Manufacturers' Club. Nice sunny day for it, too."

"Sure's an old club. I once belonged to a club, too. It was a hiking club. But I got plenty o' walking all day looking for customers, so I lit out of it."

"I'm doing pretty well right now, Mr. Crowley, with my own business."

I was suddenly interested in his personal life—and I was positive Mickey had one. "I suppose, after your day's work is done, you can't wait until you're in a movie theatre watching your favorite Western hero? Eh, Mickey?"

I expected, when he raised his rather large blue eyes, to see them aglow with sudden fire. Instead they were quite calm, perhaps skeptical. "The movies are oke, Mr. Crowley, but they're mostly for kids."

"TELL ME, Mickey, what do you like to do besides shining shoes?"

"Eat, Mr. Crowley. Just eat. My specialty's hot dogs and—fishcakes. But gimme hot dogs any time—with lots o' mustard and onions and saurkraut. 'Course I go for fishcakes too. But hot dogs is my specialty. When I get home mom's got potatoes and beef stew and that's okay with me. But I always sneak down to the hot dog stand on the corner with two or three nickels—sometimes as many as six—and get myself hot dogs with all the fixings."

"Guess I'm just about the hot-dog-eatenest guy in the city. Gosh! Guess I'm always hungry for 'em. Mom says I got a barrel for a stomach, always going after eats the way I do. But mom's a pretty good sport anyway for letting me have some of the nickels I take in over the day."

I could tell, by the rapt expression on Mickey's gold-flecked face, that he was mentally immersed in those delicious frankfurters, with "all the fixings"—concocted by this genius Mike. That small tongue of his seemed to move faster as if it were curling about a portion of his favorite delight. I could almost taste with him that incomparable flavor, laden with the essence of onions, mustard and saurkraut. But Mickey was straightening up and packing his brush, his rags, his cans of polish back into the crude little box. His small grimy palm hovered toward me and with a burst of generosity, I placed on the little hardened palm not one nickel but three. I watched the freckles for the sign of joy. But a man happened to pass close by me at the moment, one of my fellow club members, and he placed a brotherly hand on my shoulder.

"Fred," he called me by my first name, of course, "don't you forget the dinner tonight. Hundredth anniversary of the club, you know. And it's going to cost you just one hundred dollars for your plate, whether you come or not. Cheap at that."

One hundred dollars a plate! I saw Mickey pocket the three nickels I had given him and when I looked into his eyes, they stared back at me, very wide and very blue, and I had nothing to say.

SMART ROOKIE

The sergeant was quizzing a group of rookies. "Smith," he asked, "what's the first thing you do when cleaning a rifle?"

"I look at the number," answered the private.

"What's that got to do with it?" the sarge barked.

"That," answered Smith, "is to make sure I'm cleaning my own gun!"

Let's Get Straight!

A gangling youth walked to the clerk of the court and announced he wanted a marriage license. "Certainly," said the clerk. "Where's the bride-elect?"

"What d-ya mean, bride-elect?" asked the youngster. "There warn't no election—this gal appointed herself."

Hot Seat

"Look," the attorney pleaded with his client, "you've just got to give me more facts to work with. Don't you understand, man, that you're facing the electric chair?"

The prisoner looked not at all concerned. "That's okay by me," he said. "Just make sure I don't have to sit in it!"

Separation

Millie: "What did Jim and Mary do about their house when they got their divorce?"

Mollie: "Mary says they divided it half and half."

Millie: "How could they do that?"

Mollie: "Oh, she's agreed to stay inside and he's agreed to stay outside."

NATURE BOY

"Above all," the doctor argued, "you must eat more fruit, and particularly the skin of the fruit. The skin contains all the vitamins. What, by the way, is your favorite fruit?"

The patient looked gloomy. "Coconuts," he said.

Too Much Trouble

A minister advertised for a handyman and the next morning a neat young man rang the bell.

"Can you start the fire and have breakfast ready by seven o'clock?" asked the minister.

The young man thought he could.

"Can you polish all the silver, wash the dishes and keep the house and grounds neat and tidy?" was the next question.

"Look, Reverend," protested the young man. "I came here to see about getting married, but if it's going to be anything like that, you can count me out right now!"

TOUGH COURSE

A novice golfer approached the first tee, nervously glancing around to see if he were being observed. Sure enough, there were about 30 people sitting on the club house porch. Undaunted he teed up, selected his club, swung it in a mighty arc—and missed. He swung again and again, missing the ball each time. Finally, he wiped his forehead, turned to his audience and said, "Tough course, ain't it?"

A Question

"Hello! Is this the city bridge department?"

"Yes! What can we do for you?"

"How many points do you get for a little slam?"

CONSERVATION

A speaker was lecturing on forest reserve. "I don't suppose," said he, "that there's a person in the house who has done a single thing to conserve our timber resources."

Silence ruled for several seconds, and then a meek voice from the rear of the hall timidly retorted, "I once shot a woodpecker."

BUILDING CONTRACT DOCUMENTS ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that the Lemon Grove School District, Lemon Grove, California, acting by and through its Board of Trustees hereinafter referred to as the "Owner," will receive up to, but not later than 8:00 P.M. on the 8th day of April, 1952, sealed bids for the award of a contract for the furnishing of all labor, materials, tools, expendable equipment, and all utility and transportation services necessary for the construction of Additions to and Remodeling of Lemon Grove Intermediate School on Portions of Lots 10 and 17, Subdivison No. 2 of Lot 12, Rancho Mission, Lemon Grove, County of San Diego, State of California.

Bids shall be opened and publicly read aloud at the above stated time in the office of the District Superintendent of Schools, Lemon Grove, California.

Each bid must conform and be responsive to this invitation, the Information for Bidders, the Plans, Specifications, and all other Documents comprising the pertinent Contract Documents. Copies of the Contract Documents are now on file and open to public inspection in the office of the Architect, 403 Scripps Building, San Diego 1, California, and may be obtained by depositing $50.00 for each set. This deposit will be refunded if the set or sets of Contract Documents delivered are returned in good condition within ten (10) days after the bid opening.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check payable to the Owner, or a satisfactory bid bond in favor of the Owner executed by the Bidder as Principal and a satisfactory Surety Company as Surety, in an amount not less than five (5%) percent of the maximum amount of the bid. The check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the Bidder shall execute the contract if it be awarded to him in conformity with the Contract Documents and shall provide the surety bond or bonds as specified therein within five days after notification of the award of the contract to the bidder.

The Owner reserves the privilege of rejecting any or all bids, or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bid or in the bidding. Preference will be made in the award for California made supplies, pursuant to Sections 4330 to 4334 inclusive, Government Code.

The Owner has determined the prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which this work is to be performed for each craft or type of workmen needed to execute the contract, which will be awarded to the successful Bidder, to be as follows:

Foreman shall receive not less than $.175 per hour more than Journeyman.

The foregoing schedule of per diem wages is based on a working day of eight hours. The wages of every laborer and mechanic engaged in work on the project shall be computed on a basic day rate of eight hours per day, eight hours of continuous employment, except for lunch periods, constituting a day's work when a single shift is employed, and seven and one-half hours of continuous employment, except for lunch period, constituting a day's work when two or more shifts are employed.

OVERTIME

Subject to the exceptions hereinafter noted, work in excess of eight hours per day shall be permitted upon compensation, when a single shift is employed, at one and one-half times the basic rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of eight hours on any one day, or at any time during the interval from 5:00 p. m. Friday to 7:00 a. m. Monday, or on holidays, and when one or more shifts are employed, at one and one-half times the basic rate of pay for all hours worked in excess of seven and one-half hours on any one day or at any time during the interval from Friday midnight to Sunday midnight.

EXCEPTIONS

Carpenter's rate is double time for all overtime.

Cement Finishers' overtime rate is time and one-half for the first three hours of overtime in any one calendar day, and double time thereafter.

Operating Engineers' overtime rate is time and one-half; double time on Sundays and holidays; and double time whenever Operating Engineers are working on any project where members of other crafts (on the same project) are receiving the double time rate.

Reinforcing Iron Workers' rate is double time for all overtime.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded, and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen, and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Attention is called to the fact that a list of proposed sub-contractors must be submitted with the bid.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date for the opening of bids.

JAMES B. UTT

SOME OF THE PROPOSITIONS FOR WHICH HE STANDS

The dignity of the individual should be protected and insured.

The sovereignty of government should not rise above the sovereignty of the State or of the individual.

An atmosphere in Government should be created which will insure individual rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Moral responsibility and public trust should be re-established in government agencies.

The encroachment upon our water rights by the Federal government should be stopped.

The Declaration of Independence should be made as effective today as it was in 1776.

The tide lands should be returned to the states.

Non-essential and non-defense spending should be curtailed. Honesty in government should be made a virtue instead of a farce.

Our foreign policy should be made a matter of determination by Congress and not one of personal determination by the Executive Department.

Lemon Grove School News

San Miguel School

Officers were elected last week for the fourth grade class at San Miguel School with Dea Anna Anderson, president, Michael Krawchak, vice-president; Billie Lea Stark, secretary, Betty Finney, Judy Nicodemus, Michael Calvert and Robert La Dam. John Strawn is the teacher for this class.

Monterey Heights

The P.T.A. will meet Thursday, April 3, at 7:30 p. m. in the kindergarten for a panel discussion. "3-Dimensional Growth — Physical, Mental, Spiritual," led by Mrs. Glen Crosbie of Mt. Helix Council. Fourth grade students participating will be Merle Pierce, Keith Julian, Brenda Priest and fifth grade students will be Dona Bell, Paul Hayman and Edward Orem. Hostesses will be fourth grade mothers.

Helix High

A circus theme will highlight Helix High's carnival, to be held April 26 at the La Mesa Youth Center, for the purpose of raising money to defray the Associated Student Body deficit of $1,693.98.

The Junior-Senior Horizon Club of Helix High held their fifth annual Spring Smorgasbord last Saturday in the La Mesa Youth Center. The floor show, with Bill Dyer, as Master of Ceremonies, included Elaine Ehlers, baton twirling; the Henrie sisters, vocalists; Mike Spinazzola, accordianist; Bill Kohnhorst, vocalist; Jerry Palmer, vocalist; Joan Wilson, comedian and Bette Vance, vocalist.

Intermediate School

Students from the seventh grade art classes, under direction of Elizabeth Robbins, have made colorful boxes and posters for the annual Easter Bunny Contest, sponsored by Eugene Mouillesseaux, to be held at the Grove Theatre on Wennesday, April 9.

The sixth grade students of Mr. Purves' class witnessed the eruption of a "volcano" this week. It was made of plaster of paris and the reaction which simulated an eruption was a harmless chemical compound.

Mr. Allen's students welcomed David Gallagher back to class, following his hospitalization for surgery.

Student Council members are sponsoring a host and hostess program during lunch hour in the school cafeteria. Selected students wear bright green and gold arm bands made by Mrs. Rolland Purves.

Vista La Mesa School

A sure sign of Spring is the noon hour softball competition between fifth and fourth grades. Robert Masters and Harold Brogan are faculty coaches. In the latter's class, students are preparing folders for Public Schools Week, April 28 - May 3.

Class officers for April in Mr. Master's room (grade five) are Howard Bryant, president; Jimmy Planchon, vice president; Jimmy Wells, secretary; Billy Wester, board monitor; Billy De Roos, beauty monitor; John Conlee, science monitor and Owen Beckham, librarian.

Virginia Cornelius' 5th graders presented a program for school assembly on Friday called "Snow White and Good English," an adaptation by Mrs. Cornelius of the original story, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." The cast included Bonnie Smith, queen; Bonnie Bisbee, Snow White; Jack Milner, servant; Morris Nunez, huntsman; Barbara Thomas, Liuba Cesena, Raymond Kygar, Alan Seeman, George Sarantos, Vernon Villarino, dwarfs. Judith La Faver led the group in singing three songs from the Walt Disney movie, Gene La Dou and Gerald Easley acted as curtain pages.

Science is occupying some class time in Mrs. Tait's third grade, which has been studying wildflowers from this vicinity and using their reference books in research for names of new species. They are also learning about tadpoles and caterpillars. One of the latter is now in the pupa stage, and pupi's are anxiously awaiting for the moth or butterfly to emerge.

BAND IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Members of the Lemon Grove School band and orchestra, both under the direction of Paul Cheatham, participated in the music festival held last weekend at Russ Auditorium in San Diego. Instrumental groups attending from this district included the violin trio, with James Glazebrook, Gail Stringer and Harvey Good, and the woodwind ensemble with Deanne McCune, Mary Telles, Janet Baxter and Patsy Anderson. Ratings will be announced later.

TEACHERS ASS'N MEETS

The Lemon Grove Teachers Association met this Thursday evening at the Vista La Mesa School, at which time an election of officers was held. Last Monday evening, the executive board met at the Golden Avenue School to discuss policy procedures for the next school year. Attending were Bob Sutton, president, Clarence Allen, Margaret Darroch, Virginia Cornelius, Ben Schei, Hazel Mulkey, Ellen Berdel, Louis Polizzi, Ovella Mason and Agnes Rodgers.

Golden Ave. School

Second graders in Mrs. Ovella Mason's class at Golden Avenue School visited the Lemon Grove Postoffice as part of their social studies unit last week. Postmaster Faucher explained how mail is received and delivered to families in this community.

Mary Kniffing thanked him for helping Steve Walsh of the school safety patrol escorted the class safely across the street. Mrs. O. V. Brandt and Mrs. Thomas Corel, room mothers, accompanied the students, with Mrs. Mason.

This Saturday the following boys will be guests of John Van Gilse at the Grove Theater in recognition of splendid work done on the School Safety Patrol at Golden Avenue: Bob Kievit, Seve Taylor, Freddy Northcutt, Robert Holbrook, Vernon Mayes, Robert Bunch, Dwayne Affolt, Frank Greenlee, John Wylie, Steve Walsh, David Gallagher, and Charles Taylor. School safeties who will be also honored are Janie Larsen and Billy Hopson.

MAKES HONOR ROLL

Lambert H. Koopmans, 8284 Golden, was named on State College's scholastic honor roll for the past semester. To qualify for the list a student must carry a full study load and have a B-plus average or higher.

McINTOSH TO RAISE BEEF

John F. McIntosh, president and manager of Comanche Bowl is stepping down after five years to live on [illegible] ranch near Flynn Springs. He and Mrs. McIntosh will [illegible] trip through the East before settling down to raise baby beef on the ranch. Russell Stoll, a member of the Comanche organization, has been named manager.

What points the WAY?
There are a good many fine insurance agencies — with experience and knowledge and services which recommend them highly to the public. How can you tell which ones come under this category? What points the way? There are a number of things. First of all, good agents represent good insurance companies. Next, the good agent is always anxious to render services which are unusual but essential to the insurance welfare of his policyholders. He knows how to build a good insurance program. He is not after just the expiration dates on your present policies. He is willing to advise first, before you buy.

A Derby Hopeful in Every Stable

By GRANTLAND RICE

EARLY DERBY BIRDS are now flitting or fluttering from limb to limb. They are covering a big part of the national landscape. Almost more than Uncle Bill Corum's active eyes can follow.

A few of them are busy around Santa Anita. This list includes two strong challengers from the Vanderbilt stable—Cousin and Whither—both high-grade candidates.

Grantland Rice

Mrs. Warren Wright, Ben and Jimmy Jones have a stout contender in Hill Gail, Buddy Hirsch is working desperately on two possible starters and so is dapper Cliff Mooers, who has good stock.

But there are other hot selections as far away as Florida and South Carolina. One of these is a Greentree horse labeled Tom Fool. Another is a well-liked possibility known as Primate. Primate can be extremely dangerous. And down around Hialeah Jack Amiel, owner of the Kentucky Derby winner for 1951, is spilling quite a bunch of oratory about another Derby winner (maybe) known as Count Flame.

"I told practically everybody in hearing distance last spring that Count Turf would win the Derby," Amiel says. "Almost nobody believed me—but Count Turf won just the same. I am now telling everybody around that Count Flame, another son of Count Fleet, will win the 1952 Kentucky Derby. Nobody believes me, But Count Flame will either be there or quite close. Any son of Count Fleet is dangerous. He was a great thoroughbred—up in the same class with Man o' War and Citation. Watch Count Fleet horses this year, wherever they run." Certainly John Hertz will give nobody an argument about this statement.

At the moment out along the Pacific Coast Hill Gail and Whither—Calumet and Vanderbilt—have looked better than any of the others. But they haven't tangled up with a Primate or a Tom Fool. Or a Count Flame, as Jack Amiel might add. It would be quite a stunt, at that, to see Mr. Amiel repeat. There's no law against it.

Cheerful Gang

As a rule a trainer is about as optimistic as a football coach. He can only scent disaster. The owner is usually the optimist—but rarely the trainer.

Amiel's trainer didn't think enough of Count Turf to make the Kentucky trip. Ben Jones has never been a loud cheerer for any of his horses. Before the 1949 Derby he told me that he wouldn't bet a quarter on Ponder at long odds.

But in spite of early floods and endless January gray days, the trainers are mostly in a jovial mood.

Bill Winfrey, head man of Al Vanderbilt's stable, confesses that most of his thoroughbreds are either sharp—or getting sharp.

"No complaint so far," Bill says. "We have some that can run."

Even the ever-careful Ben Jones and his son Jimmy admit that Hill Gail is better than they first thought and that he has a pretty fair chance of taking over the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby. "Hill Gail is our best bet — with A Gleam a definite possibility," Ben says. "Hill Gail wasn't at his best when he ran in the Futurity at Belmont. He had a bad leg, as we discovered later. Windy City II ran a great race to beat Hill Gail and A Gleam in the San Gabriel Stakes but Hill Gail's an improving horse and he may be quite useful before the season is over."

Hill Gail will take a shot at both Derbies—Santa Anita and Churchill Downs. Hill Gail is another Bull Lea production and Ben Jones is dead sure that the old Bull has many winners left.

It was interesting to know that Hialeah's fast getaway means another big spring for Florida's extremely fine track.

Back to Jim Thorpe

In the last half century what athlete did England ever turn out even close to Jim Thorpe? Jim could win an Olympic decathlon and pentathlon. He could run and jump, vault and hurdle. Jim was a football star and a baseball big leaguer. He could have handled the British Empire alone. So why does an English sports writer say U.S. athletes are sissies?

Since then a long, long list of double and triple stars in various sports, outside of Jim Thorpe, have appeared on the scene.

One of the greatest was Neil Snow of Michigan—1901. Snow was a great defensive end and offensive fullback. He was brilliant at both jobs. Stanford will recall him. Snow was a .420 hitter on Michigan's baseball team. He was offered big-league jobs all over the map. Snow was a star track and field entry—shot put, high jump and several other events. He was one of Michigan's greatest stars and still sung there.

This country has been packed with athletes who were never specialists. I'll admit that modern football is developing the specialist with its double-platoon system. One big-time coach told me, "I've got two fine ball carriers who can tackle just as well. But they refuse to tackle, or play their share of defense.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON By JIM RHODY

Beware Poor Land

Experience has taught the veteran quail hunter, regardless of the lack of thought he may have given the matter, to go along with Louis Bromfield's observation, "Poor land produces poor crops, poor stock, and poor people," might well be amended to include "poor game." Given the opportunity he will, almost instinctively, select as his hunting territory a fertile farm, offering ample food and a diversity of game habitat.

We believe it was Dr. R. W. Eschmeyer, the noted fish biologist, who jokingly said the way to spot a farm pond that is full of fish is to notice how well the farm-houses and barns are painted. The better the paint job, the better the fishing. His reasoning was that if the buildings are well maintained, it is because the farmer is prosperous. If the farmer is prosperous, it is because his land is fertile. If the land is fertile, the pond also will be fertile, and the fertile pond will support the most fish. We can't report on how his theory works out in practice, but it sounds logical.

Weeds Not Enough

It is self-evident that non-fertile land cannot produce the luxuriant growths and abundant food supply requisite for carrying a large quantity of game through the critical winter and breeding seasons. Poor land, especially if it has been overgrazed, is highly productive of weeds, but weeds alone are not enough to satisfy fully the needs of game birds and animals. They are fine for mice, but who wants to go mouse hunting?

Less self-evident is the fact that foods grown on neglected worn-out land are deficient in minerals and vitamins that are as important to animals as they are to man. Their degree of importance is indicated by the fact that some animals can detect their presence, or note their absence, in the food they eat. For instance, a hog given free choice will eat from a pile of corn raised from good soil in preference to an equally sized pile raised on a poor farm. Of further importance is the possibility that living in poor habitat and under general adverse conditions alters breeding habits and reduces the reproductive capacity of animals. Leopold suspected this; later observations lend credance to his suspicions. Quite possibly the two phenomena are related.

About Predators

Predator control may help to protect our small game but if we concentrate our attention on killing the predators we should not overlook the fact that our quail or grouse may be suffering most from lack of proper food or cover—the biologist might say that the habitat is inadequate.

Such measures as bounties, artificial propagation, closed seasons, game sanctuaries have not provided the answers to proper management of our game and fish, though they may continue to be useful tools of the wildlife manager for special situations. Any useful tool for land or wildlife management should not be overlooked, nor should the hunting and trapping of foxes and other predators by farmers and others be discouraged where overpopulations exist. The problem is a big one and all interested people can do their part.

Nearly everyone who enjoys getting out-of-doors has the urge to do something for the wildlife. Some feed songbirds, some attend conservation classes or help with projects, others belong to sportsmen's clubs, while many find their biggest thrills in listening to barbership stories. Nevertheless, the interest is there. When we are interested and enthused we want action and it is human nature to act upon the obvious first. Too often, we tackle the symptoms rather than the disease, and in our haste, we are too human to realize, or admit, that man himself is often responsible for his own misfortune on this earth.

Spoon Hooks

When using a spoon hook as a casting lure it is well to select one not too large as the air and water resistance hampers accurate and easy casting, and retrieving is difficult. Spoons size 3 to 5 are generally fine for pickerel and northern pike, or large wall-eyed pike. The spoon for muskellunge should be 7 or 8. Larger sizes are better adapted for trolling. A line that is too light will cause additional twisting, so it is well to employ a line of from 18 pound to 20 pound test when casting.

Changing Plugs

This tip is particularly for bass fishermen who like to angle for these wary fellows after dark. Make a double loop in the end of your line about six inches long and then tie another knot in the end of the loop so as to leave a small loop about a quarter inch long. To attach the plug, pass the small loop through the eye of the plug, then lift the large loop over the plug and pull tight. To remove the plug merely pull the small loop.

Tasty Cheese Makes Appetizing Snacks
(See Recipes Below)

Tasty Snacks

THERE ARE MANY occasions for snacks in every home, especially when the family is social. Perhaps you have people dropping in before dinner, and like to serve something in the living room whether they stay for dinner or not.

Then, too, there are evening get-togethers when a bit of snacking is in order. Perhaps you bring the evening to a close with a tasty snack, something not too much, but just enough to fill you, once the conversation or games have fanned the appetite.

Both men and women appreciate a snack which has some zest to it. If it's before dinner, a salty or tangy type of tidbit is indicated. After dinner and dessert, the same type of snack is in order since the sweet tooth has already been nourished with dessert.

Tangy meat spreads, tasty breads, salty crackers and various cheeses fill the snack role to perfection. Here are many suggestions from which to choose.

• • •

These tiered sandwiches may be made in advance and chilled. The base is a round loaf of pumpernickel bread and makes an attractive sandwich piece to set on a platter.

Tiered Sandwiches
(Makes 24 wedges)
3 ounces chive cheese
3 ounces relish cheese
1 6-ounce round loaf pumpernickel bread
3 ounces deviled ham
2 tablespoons catsup
2 ounces gruyere cheese
2 ounces very sharp cheese

Let cheese stand at room temperature until soft enough to spread. Remove bottom crust from pumpernickel. Cut three ½-inch thick slices crosswise. Spread one slice with chive cheese; cover with second slice of bread, spread with relish cheese. Cover with third slice of bread. Mix deviled ham and catsup; spread third slice. Cut gruyere and very sharp cheese portions in triangles and arrange on top layer of bread, alternately, with the pointed ends toward the center. Chill thoroughly. Cut in wedges, following outline of cheese slices.

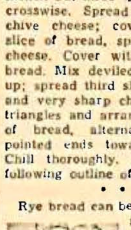
Rye bread can be made into tasty sandwiches with relish cheese and olive-pimiento cheese spreads. Wrapped in waxed paper, they'll keep in the refrigerator until serving time:



Cheese Rye Wedges
(Makes 44)
1 loaf salty rye bread, about 2½ inches in diameter
1 5-ounce jar relish cheese spread
1 5-ounce jar olive pimiento cheese spread

Slice rye bread into 66 slices about ⅛-inch thick. Set aside 11 slices. Spread remaining slices with cheese spreads, using about 1 teaspoon for each slice. Alternating the cheese spread, stack five slices together, topping each stack with one of the 11 unspread slices. Wrap stacks in waxed paper and chill thoroughly. Just before serving, cut each stack into four wedges.

LYNN SAYS:
Simple Combinations
Keep Snacks Interesting

Celery stalks can be filled with this mixture: mashed avocado seasoned with lemon juice, salt and onion juice.

Perhaps you like as a snack just a thin slice of bread with well-flavored butter. Ground shrimp mixed with an equal quantity of butter and a seasoning of lemon juice is delicious; ground ham mixed with half as much butter and some sieved egg yolk is appetizing.

Caramel Layer Cake Beverage

Garlic Cheese Dip
1 6-ounce package garlic cheese
¼ cup soured cream

Let cheese soften at room temperature, then beat until light and fluffy. Blend in soured cream and then chill until ready to serve.

Blue Cheese Spread
½ cup blue cheese
¼ cup cream cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
¾ to 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
Onion juice
Lemon juice

Soften cheese and blend together with mayonnaise. Season with worcestershire sauce, onion and lemon juice to taste.

Deviled Ham Dip
4 tablespoons deviled ham
4 tablespoons horseradish
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 tablespoons minced chives
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Blend deviled ham with horseradish, onion and chives. Fold in whipped cream and chill before serving.

Dried Beef Dip
6 ounces cream cheese
1 wedge blue cheese (about 1 ounce)
½ cup dried beef, finely cut
½ small onion, grated
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 tablespoon mayonnaise

Let cheese soften at room temperature. Blend together both kinds, and then mix in other ingredients. Serve with crackers or potato chips.

Avocado Dip
4 strips bacon
2 avocadoes
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 tablespoon lime juice
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup mayonnaise

Dice bacon, fry until crisp, then drain. Peel avocadoes, mash fine and add lime juice and seasonings. Soften with mayonnaise and add bacon bits. This may be used for dipping or for a spread on crisp crackers.

When you want a hot appetizer, these little meat balls are tasty and easy to serve as well as to eat:

Spicy Meat Balls
(Makes 24)
½ pound ground beef
1 egg
½ cup dry bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon prepared horseradish
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
Dash of tabasco sauce
Grated American or Italian Style cheese

Combine all ingredients except cheese, blending well. Shape into tiny balls. Saute in hot fat until all sides are lightly browned, which will take about 4 minutes. Roll each ball in grated cheese. Insert toothpick and serve hot.

For a spicy snack to serve before dinner, try some thin slices of salmon spread with cream cheese, then wrap around 2-inch sticks of celery.

You'll like these hot tidbits to serve before a meal: spread strips of uncooked bacon with peanut butter; roll tightly, fasten with a toothpick and broil until bacon is crisp.

Like to stick tasty tidbits into a grapefruit for snacks? Wrap rolled anchovies in a half slice of bacon and broil until bacon is crisp. Or, wrap shrimp in bacon and broil.

Finishing Adds Beauty

Furniture should be beautiful as well as useful. That is why rare and beautiful woods are sought the world over for making fine furniture. The full beauty of the natural figure in these woods can be developed only by skillful finishing.

To Avoid "Sags"

When painting, remove the drawers of dressers or cabinets from the pieces of furniture in which they belong and set them with drawer-front facing up. This prevents the possibility of enamel runs or sags.

Roller Restoration

If a lamb's wool paint roller becomes matted, you can restore its fluffiness. Let the roller dry, then work over it carefully with a coarse pocket comb. When the roller is not in use, wrap it in paper or foil to keep it clean. The metal parts of the roller—especially the moving bearings—need to be kept clean, too.

Action Backgrounds

Two companion volumes of the official Army history series, "The U. S. Army in the World War, 1917-1919," recently released provide the background on the pair of great American offensive actions in that conflict. The books are "St. Mihiel" and "Meuse-Argonne," part of the 17 volumes which will make up the complete history of the war.

Small Effect

Despite fears of dairymen that Congressional repeal of taxes and other restrictions on margarine would reduce the market for butter, housewives have increased their purchase of butter since the act became effective on July 1, 1950. In 40 states which have similarly removed margarine restrictions, the quantity of butter sold has also shown no adverse effect despite booming margarine sales.

Gutters and Downspouts

At this time of year, it is wise to examine the condition of gutters and downspouts. If gutters are not well cleaned and painted, most types will soon begin to decay. When they leak, they help destroy the woodwork of a structure, making expensive repairs necessary. Paint the inside of gutters with asphalt roof coating—the outside, with house paint.

Scientists Use Shellac

Shellac is a valuable aid to archeologists in the preparation of fossilized specimens for shipment to museums. Following the disinterment of the fossil, the entire skeleton is coated freely with shellac. Thin and absorbent rice paper is then applied to the surface of the bones, followed by another coat of shellac. A remarkably tough protective shell is formed in this manner.

Original Copy

The original papyrus of the oldest known story book in the world is now in the National Museum at Leningrad. It is called "The Story of the Shipwrecked Sailor" and was recorded in Egypt about the time of the Twelfth Dynasty (2000-1788 B.C.).

Weekend Sailors

The 19 wire, quarter-inch stainless steel cable used as mast stays in some small sailboats is the same kind that is used to operate aircraft controls and will withstand a pull up to 8,200 pounds.

Confucius Books

Shih Huang Ti, Chin emperor of Ancient China, at one time ordered that all Confucian books be burned because their philosophy was opposed to his reforms. Such books were difficult to conceal, "because printing had not yet been invented, and a book was simply a great number of narrow bamboo slabs, carved with ideographs and fastened together on swivel pins."

More Farm Lands

Since 1918, 55,000,000 acres of farm-land previously used to grow feed for farm animals have been made available to raise food for people, as a result of the increasing replacement of farm horses by machinery, J. I. Case analysts predict another 20,000,000 acres will be made available similarly during the next generation.

Solve Problems

Thermopane insulating window units are being used in chicken houses, cattle barns, milk houses and hog pens to help solve moisture and daylighting problems.

Shrine Renovation

The second-to-one shrine of Islam, the Great Mosque at Medina in Saudi Arabia, is due for a mid-century face-lifting. Stone masons and carpenters soon will be elbowing pilgrims at this holy place outranked only by Mecca in the eyes of the Moslem World. Repair crews have been something of a devotional hazard at the Mosque over the past decade and a half, notes the National Geographic Society. From 1933 to 1939, worshipers reaching this sun-baked town where Mohammed preached, died and was buried, watched artisans laying new marble floors. They saw workmen restoring the minarets and columns whose crumbling condition threatened the structure as a whole. An Egyptian banker donated the funds for those repairs. Some 200 columns support the HARAM, as the Medina Mosque of the Prophet is known to Moslems. A score or more have deteriorated in the decade since the previous repairs, necessitating the present reconstruction program for which Saudi Arabia's oil-rich king, Ibn Saud, has agreed to take care of the bill.

Heat Resistant Paint

Heat resistant paint has been developed which is said to retain its adhesion and color stability under temperatures as high as 1000° F. It is available in most colors and may be applied by brushing, spraying or dipping.

Safeguard Tools

Before storing garden tools for the fall, clean them thoroughly and apply linseed oil to both wood and metal parts. This keeps the wood from drying out and helps prevent metal parts from rusting.

Bookmaking

The art of bookmaking reached its height in the monasteries of Europe during the Middle Ages. Manuscript work was done in writing rooms, called "scriptoria," where master copyists worked painstakingly "with rich reds and blues and precious bits of thin, beated gold leaf," to illuminate exquisite, hand-lettered manuscripts.

Sensitive Sector

When the American First Army moved into the sector east of the Argonne Forest on September 22, 1918, they were opposite what the German general, von Hindenburg, termed the "most sensitive point" of his fortified line. Four days later, September 26, the million-man force attacked the Germans in the first of five, successive offensive phases.

Pneumonia Explained

A vital factor that may help to explain why pneumonia occurs so often following attacks of the "common cold" has been discovered by three University of Michigan scientists. The researchers have found that excessive mucous secretions in the body's breathing tract can lower the ability of tissue to resist infection. Animal experiments with human mucous and its components have been reported by Dr. Walter J. Nungester, J. K. Bosch and Darwin Alonso of the University's Medical School Department of Bacteriology. The report appears in the issue of a journal entitled the "Proceedings of the Society of Experimental Biology and Medicine." In an interview, Dr. Nungester explained that in healthy persons normal mucous secretion plays an active part in protecting the body against disease. However, he indicated, excessive secretion which may occur during an attack of the "common cold" upsets the body's natural protective mechanism and permits more serious infection to readily take place. A certain amount of acid is needed by the stomach to perform its digestive work, but excessive amounts of acid result in harmful effects, he explained. The lowering of body resistance when excessive mucous secretion occurs may be due to an interference with vital tissue chemical processes necessary to combat infection.

MRS. IVY STILLMAN JOHNSON

Mrs. Ivy Stillman Johnson of 2173 Bonita St., passed away at the Paradise Valley Sanitarium Saturday morning, March 22. Services were held at Johnson-Saum Mortuary in San Diego on Thursday at 4 p. m.

Mrs. Johnson will be missed by a host of friends. She moved to the Grove in 1928 and for years, before her health began to fail, she was active in V.F.W. and Women's Club activities. During the last war she was a Civilian Air Defense observer. Before moving to California she was in business in Denver, Colorado.

Join the parade of well-dressed men in an Arrow "Easter Parade" Ensemble

Smart, harmonizing

Shirt 3.95
Tie 2.00
Handerchief .50

Wonderful get-together for Easter! Smart, fine-striped shirt in your favorite pastel, teamed with a handsome acetate tie and man-sized Arrow handkerchief. They all harmonize beautifully (but not obviously). Like all Arrows, the shirt carries the famous Mitoga trademark which means it's tapered for better fit. "Sanforized"® fabrics (they don't shrink more than 1%). Easter is practically with us . . . better stop in for your Arrow "Easter Parade" ensemble today.
